The Estill County Grand Jury returned indictments in Estill Circuit Court on April 27 that included theft, receiving stolen property and wanton endangerment.

They also issued a "superceding indictment" for the men accused of robbing the Irvine Healthmart Pharmacy more than a year ago.

Freddie H. Hunter, 52 of Hi Hat and Jeffrey Hunter, 32 of Richmond were previously indicted for the robbery and theft.

The current indictment is for complicity to first degree robbery and states that the two men entered the pharmacy with a deadly weapon with the intent to accomplish the theft of prescription drugs.

Kentucky State Police Detective Ken Bradley appeared as a witness.

Judge-executive recommends 50 cent raise for all employees

By Rhonda Smyth
CV&T News Editor

Estill County Judge Executive Wallace Taylor presented a first draft of the 2012-13 budget to the fiscal court at a special meeting at the courthouse Monday.

"The budget is $6.57 million and it will work. But we have a wild card," Taylor said. "The jail had about $5,000 in overtime in April."

He said he had sent executive orders, threats and time sheets but nothing stopped the overtime.

"The jail has more overtime than all the other departments put together. If you will back me on this and say no, we can stop it," he said.

Taylor mentioned several items that could be cut to save the county money. One of them was to end door to door recycling.

"The state mandates that we have to have recycling, but we can offer a central drop-off point instead of sending a truck out to pick it up," Taylor explained.

He also said the recycling truck was broke down and would need about $7,000 to fix the transmission.

Taylor also discussed the sheriff's office. He said the court had paid for a deputy and overtime for that office.

"We cannot continue to fund everything everybody asks us for," he said.

He said there are three phone lines going into his office and he is having one of them disconnected. He said Solid Waste Coordinator Kim Dawes, who is currently a full-time employee, will start working only 20 hours per week.

He suggested the court stop purchasing uniforms and to cut out the clothing allowance that some workers get.

"I know I'll be one of the most hated men in Estill County come tomorrow," Taylor said. "But I am looking at cutting out one holiday a year."

The percentage the county pays on each employees' state retirement will go up three percent in the coming fiscal year.

"We didn't give any raises last year and I don't know what the health insurance rates are going to be this year but I want to suggest that we give each employee a 50 cents per hour raise," Taylor said. "But to be able to give this raise, we have to do the other things I mentioned."

He also said they have some cameras left over from the courthouse installation and he wants to put them in the common areas in the jail.

"I have been told that people are going in there to eat that shouldn't be and we need to stop this. You can either back me on this or tell me to go another way," Taylor said.

The court has until the May regular meeting to look over the budget and make any suggestions or changes they want to.

None of the court members looked very happy.

The only other business the court conducted was to accept the magistrates' recommendations on roads in their districts that needed black top; pay an invoice from S & P Carpet and refund a duplicate payment made by

Estill High Academics team takes on the local bar association

The Estill High Academics team took the name "Bestill" (they are the best and they are from Estill) to compete against lawyers and judges from the Estill County Bar Association who took the "tongue in cheek" name "The Justice League" Monday night at the high school. The Justice League battled valiantly but to no avail. When the dust cleared Bestill took the victory with a score of 39 to 26. EDA Director Joe Crawford served as master of ceremonies and Estill Middle Academics coach Leslie Cornett read the questions. Pictured above are some of the Bestill team members and below are the starters for The Justice League. Admission to the match was a canned food item for the Estill County Food bank.

Estill High Future Problem Solvers placed second in state governor's cup competition and will compete in international competition in June.

Estill Deputy Randy Farthing is investigating and discovered that there was no forced entry. Graham said she had a cleaning lady who was in and out of her house a lot, but she couldn't think of anybody else.

Farthing reported that he checked all the local pawn shops but hadn't recovered any of the missing items. The case is still under investigation.

4-24 Scotty Harris of River Drive reported the theft of Citizen Guaranty Bank checks that belonged to Barbara Mink. The report by Deputy Karl Rifembark states that Jeremy Tipton forged checks and cashed them at the bank for $280, at Stop and Shop for $300 and at a gas station for $100. The case is still under investigation. No arrests were made.

The other charges are class D felonies. His bond was set at $5,000.

The warrant states that on March 21, Osborne took possession of an automobile that belonged to Teresa Adkins and failed to return it. It further states that Adkins gave Osborne permission to drive her car to the Irvine Stop and Shop and that he left a passenger at the store and drove off. He was given several days to bring the car back. The Winchester Police were looking for Osborne on other charges and when they found the stolen vehicle, they attempted to arrest Osborne, but he fled.

After a car chase that took police through several counties, Osborne was arrested and the vehicle returned to Osborne.

His bail was set at $10,000.

Hunter Macey and Matthew Starling

Celebrity chefs are hometown boys

By Lisa Bicknell
CV&T Staff Writer

Celebrity chefs and hometown boys Matthew Starling and Hunter Macey demonstrated several ways to cook morel mushrooms during the festival on Saturday. A good-sized crowd gathered under the mushroom market tent to watch.

Both men completed culinary school at Sullivan University in Lexington, and both are currently employed by Addie's Restaurant at the Woodford Inn in Versailles.

Starling says he first became interested in restaurant work at the age of 14 when he worked at Cedar Village. He also has fond memories of helping out on his parents' farm and getting to eat fresh food, factors that influenced him to become an advocate for "Farm to Table" and "Kentucky Proud" products. He serves as Sous Chef at the inn where he works.

Macey graduated in December 2011 in the top 10 percent of his class. He is now a Certified Culinarian and a member of the American Culinary Federation.

The chefs created salad, soup and an entrée and served samples of their dishes to an audience who appeared eager to taste them.

OPINION

Legislators make significant progress on many issues

Steve Behear
Governor of Kentucky

A close look at this spring's lawmaking sessions in Kentucky reveals vital legislation that will help our beleaguered families and address systemic problems affecting our quality of life.

The General Assembly and my office worked together to make significant progress on many issues, including:

- Wide-ranging and bold legislation to help us target the illegal use of prescription drugs by cracking down on "pill mills," targeting unscrupulous or reckless doctors and allowing us to share information with other states. Creating

- more aggressive tools to address this national crisis was one of the highest priorities of the session.
- Preserving unemployment insurance benefits for our out-of-work families and protecting a $600 million federal tax credit for businesses. Like most other states, Kentucky had to borrow during the recession's aftermath to keep our unemployment insurance program viable, and this business-created plan helps make the program sound again.
- Authorizing Kentucky's first tax amnesty program in 10 years, which will result in overdue taxes being paid, and bringing new taxpayers onto the tax rolls.
- Strengthening incentive programs that help existing Kentucky companies expand facilities and create jobs, specifically in automotive and parts manufacturing and in heavy industry.
- Establishing a task force to study how juvenile offenders are punished, including the treatment of so-called status offenses like truancy and running away.

- Establishing a task force to review public pensions in the Commonwealth.

In addition, legislators largely kept intact my proposed two-year budget. Its 8.4 percent cut in spending for many state agencies represents the 11th time we've reduced spending in the last 4½ years. The enacted budget reduces our reliance on one-time funds and has the smallest amount of new debt since 1996.

Despite tight revenues, we have maintained current-level funding for K-12 instruction, preserved Medicaid, which provides health care for one in five Kentuckians, and protected public safety programs.

Furthermore, the budget includes my proposals to:

- Reduce crushing case-loads for social workers by hiring more staff in the area of child abuse and neglect.

- Fund for the first time a program that provides colon cancer screenings to 4,000 uninsured Kentuckians.
- Invest in aggressive drug abuse treatment by funding for the first time out-patient substance-abuse treatment in the Medicaid program for both adults and adolescents.
- Fund an elder abuse registry that will allow our families to protect senior citizens from unfit caretakers.
- Expand the One-Stop Business Portal to streamline how our businesses interact with state government.
- Fund the design, planning and purchase of land for the Breathitt Veterinary Center in Hopkinsville, considered the agriculture community's highest priority.
- Fund necessary road and bridge infrastructure throughout the Commonwealth, including the construction of the Ohio River Bridges Project in Louisville.

- And continue to invest in critical capital needs, including elementary and secondary schools, a fourth state veterans' nursing home, and maintenance for the state's aging infrastructure.

These investments in the long-term needs of our people help chip away at fundamental weaknesses that have hurt us for generations.

As we now look to the future, I will continue to work on some fundamental issues that were not successful this spring. I think the legislature missed golden opportunities to strengthen our workforce by raising the legal drop-out age and expanding preschool programs for our youngest students. In addition, I continue to believe that creating an independent review panel to examine child fatalities and near-fatalities where child abuse and/or neglect are alleged is important.

And like most Kentuckians, I am disappointed that voters will not, in this cycle, be given the opportunity to decide the future of expanding gaming once and for all.

Our focus now must be on improving the quality of life for our citizens and finding ways to improve their opportunities for jobs. Toward that end, Lt. Gov. Jerry Abramson and I will moving forward in the months ahead on a broad study of Kentucky's tax structure to better align it with the principles of fairness, economic competitiveness and a 21st Century economy. We need to create a tax system that enables state government to meet the needs of our people and our businesses.

A lot of hard work and many difficult decisions lie ahead as we implement a very sparse budget and try to maintain services to our citizens over the next two years.

But even in a very challenging session, we took some significant steps forward.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Stokes shares a road project experience

To the editor:

I read with concern the April 19 article on the proposed expansion of Route 89. I grew up in Ravenna and still have deep ties to Estill County where I visit often. What struck me about the article was the similarity of this road reconstruction project to one that was completed near my home in Rochester, N.Y. in the mid-1990's.

The Rochester project involved reconstruction of a county road passing through a residential section of my community much like that along Route 89. I, along with many concerned residents, attended numerous presentations by the County road engineers. The proposed road design was to "fix" a number of problems in this older two-lane roadway. The design called for (1) widening the road to add a turning lane and wider shoulders, (2) improving sight distance by leveling out hills and straightening out curves and (4) adding sidewalks. The 35mph speed limit was not going to change.

What I learned from this road project that was completed over sixteen years ago was the following: (1) Widening and straightening the road doubled traffic on the road within four years and increased speeds to an average of 45 to 50 mph. It turns out that the old road design, with its gentle hills, curves and narrower profile, had a traffic calming effect of reducing and slowing down traffic; (2) A wider, heavily trafficked; faster road will divide a neighborhood just as effectively as a deep river. What used to be an easy crossing from one side of the old road to the other for a walk in the neighborhood became an exercise in taking your life into your hands; (3) We lost 75 mature trees and countless mature roadside landscaping to widen this one mile stretch of road and install a sidewalk on one side. What had been one of the most beautiful, historic roads in the community had been transformed into a stark, ugly stretch of asphalt, devoid of character; (4) Road engineers primarily view road projects as exercises in moving traffic as quickly and efficiently as possible, often with little regard at the outset for the impact on the surroundings, whether it be homes, businesses or open space.

Some years later, I became an elected member of our Town Board and was involved in many additional road projects in our community. In that capacity, I learned something that I wish I had understood better in the mid-90's, i.e., that well organized efforts by determined citizens, with the support of their town officials, can result in changes to road projects that remove or mitigate the detrimental impacts on the community. I hope that the concerned residents that spoke at the Rt. 89 meeting will continue their efforts to be heard on the project and that the State will make changes to address those concerns. The State needs to be sensitive to any negative impacts of the project on this beautiful old stretch of road that is so important to Irvine, its residents and businesses.

Sleep depravation...a good excuse for poor performance

I just read a report on the Internet from the US Center for Disease Control and Prevention about how 30 percent of US workers don't get enough sleep.

It also states that 20 percent of vehicle accidents are linked to drowsy driving.

Interesting, don't you think?

Nine times out of 10 when I get to work in the morning, I am still feeling pretty drowsy, but I have never felt like I was going to just drop off to sleep.

I cannot fall asleep sitting up, so I have never fallen asleep while driving, but I tend to drive much slower when I am feeling sleepy or tired.

I know that when school children don't get enough sleep, they aren't as sharp as they should be.

So there must be some truth to the Internet contention that sleep depravation causes poor performance.

I hope during this time of testing at our schools, that students arrive bright-eyed, well rested and well fed.

I know that my public education is not nearly the quality of the education that students are receiving nowadays. But I got hit with it pretty hard the other night watching our Governor's Cup winner academics team compete against local bar association members.

I knew the answers to like three questions during the 45 minute quick recall match.

The math questions were just like somebody was speaking a foreign language to me.

The academic team didn't make the lawyers look too bad though, but they had no trouble winning the match.

It was fun to watch and made me proud of our school system.

In her letter, Rita explains that previously her winter electric bills would run above $500, but with the new Prepay Meter, bills dropped to just above $200...who wouldn't be excited with savings like that! She does such a great job of explaining how it works that we have posted her letter on our MyJacksonEnergy.com website for all members to read.

Battle of the Bands at West Irvine Elementary

Hosts Bruno Mars and Katy Perry took students at West Irvine Elementary through various genres of music last Tuesday in a Battle of the Bands Concert, composed of bands that sang lyrics about test-taking strategies. The 'concert' was an effort to motivate students who began their first day of testing under Kentucky's new K-PREP assessment, formerly known as CATS, last Wednesday. Students heard songs from 'bands' who rocked the 1960s with their beach-style music (Beach Girls) to pop and disco bands of the 1970s – Sister Sledge and The Village People. Other bands such as West Irvine's own LMNOP and the Blue-eyed T's brought students to their feet. All performances were judged by Lady Gaga and Pink. Everyone walked away a winner.

‘What’s in a Doctor’s Bag?’

“All the Kindergarten classes at South Irvine Elementary have been learning for the past 10 weeks about health. The lessons have been based on the storybook “What’s in a Doctor’s Bag?” Some of the weekly lessons have been about six of the instruments in a doctor’s bag, why the doctor uses each instrument, what kinds of foods are best for their body, why exercise is so very important, concepts about the heart and lungs, reflexes, safety issues (such as wearing seat belts and sitting in booster seats in the back seat of the car), the importance of washing their hands properly how vaccines work, etc. Marcum & Wallace Memorial Hospital generously has provided each child a real doctor’s coat for each child to keep to “play doctor” at home to reinforce the concepts presented in the program. The program was presented by Southern KY Area Health Education Center (AHEC) with health educator Diana Brandenburg. The curriculum was written by Human Environmental Sciences (HES) at the University of Kentucky. Funding for the program was provided by the Humana Foundation.

West Irvine Elementary wins attendance banner again

Another group has done it again at West Irvine. On Wednesday, April 24, all third grade students were in attendance. Mrs. Martin and staff are very proud of these students.

Estill County FBLA Captures Success

FBLA Capturing Success was the State Future Business Leaders of America theme for the 2011-2012 school year. Not only did the local chapter capture success by being awarded several recognitions at the state leadership conference, several students did as well.

Twenty-six eager members loaded the bus on Monday, April 23, as they headed to Louisville to compete, campaign, vote, and work. They were greeted on arrival by our two state officers, McKenna Clowers and Abby Witt, who had arrived in Louisville on Saturday to assist the rest of the state officer team in preparing for the conference.

Kent Julian, a motivational speaker from Georgia, inspired the students as he spoke at the Opening Session about how their responses to events determine the outcomes. He was also on hand for workshops for the students on Tuesday. Dakota Halbert gave Abby Witt's nomination speech at the Campaign Rally for a second term as FBLA State President.

From there, members spent the next two days campaigning, competing, and celebrating successes.

Our local chapter received the Commonwealth Award of Merit and was recognized for completing the State Project, participating in Unite to Read, and working to achieve the State Goals. The chapter was also presented a certificate for top five in the State for the most Professional Division members.

Several students were called to the stage for placing in their events. Receiving trophies were Taylor Adams, Tanner Chaney, Josie Farmer, Kayla Fowler (two events), Kevin Haney, Mary Plowman, Sydney Richardson, and Kayla Wolpert. Kayla Fowler and Sydney Richardson will be traveling to San Antonio in June for national competition. They will be joining Abby Witt as she begins her second term as state president and Region 6 President, Taylor Isfort is representing Estill County High School and Kentucky FBLA.

University of Kentucky 4-H/FFA Field Day Well Attended

Over 600 students representing 32 schools from across the Commonwealth attended the 42nd annual University of Kentucky 4-H/FFA Agriculture Field Day. This event, hosted by the College of Agriculture and the Department of Community and Leadership Development, took place at Commonwealth Stadium. The field day events assessed students content knowledge in the areas of agriculture, food, and natural resources. Twenty-eight competitive events assessed students core academic knowledge in the area of agriculture.

At this year's Field Day the Estill County FFA chapter participated and placed in several events including: Floriculture 1st place, with senior Olivia Crowe receiving the overall high individual score;

Dairy Judging; Livestock Evaluation; Nursery and Landscape; Forestry; Welding; FFA Quiz Bowl, tied for 3rd place; Horse Industry Knowledge; and Tractor Driving.

The University of Kentucky 4-H/FFA field day is a tradition that exemplifies the care and effort the College of Agriculture places on the future of young agriculturalist. The College of Agriculture represents 14 departments and a School of Human Environmental Sciences. These departments represent a plethora of academic majors to fit the needs of professional careers associated in a community, rural and/or agriculture spectrum. Please schedule your next academic visit with a College of Agriculture representative at (859) 257-3469.

ENCOURAGING WORD: A SIGNIFICANT GUIDELINE

Howard Coop

Guest Columnist

So, on the spur of the moment and without further thought or serious examination, a value judgment was rendered, and as a result, something was forgotten. It was brushed aside as insignificant and inconsequential.

“That is not important,” and its counterpart, “that is important,” are common expressions used regularly in everyday conversation by many folk, and they contain that which is often called a grain of truth. It’s a simple fact of life upon which one can rely that some things are not really important and other things are

It wasn’t a thought-provoking conversation in which we were engaged. On the light side, it was just a pleasant one between two friends. But as we talked, something was said that, at once, caught the attention of my friend. Immediately, he reacted dismissively by saying, “Forget it. That’s not important.”

important, and some of the things that are important are more important than others. As a result, value judgments are required and are made day by day by everyone. In some instances, these judgments are significant, for they do, or at least they can, affect life, sometimes profoundly.

People, looking at something, don’t always agree on the importance of that particular thing; therefore importance is a relative thing and it depends upon the individual making the judgment. Depending upon the perspective from which it is viewed, those viewing something, whatever it may be, may assign greater or lesser importance to it. So, an old expression says, “What’s trash to one person is treasure to another.”

So, what is important? What really matters? What counts? That’s the question, isn’t it? For almost twenty centuries, a significant guideline has supplied an answer to that perplexing question. That guideline suggests that “The only thing that counts,” another way of saying “the only thing that is important,” is allowing faith, the belief system that is the basis of ones core values, to express “itself through love.”
